An unusual view this month, looking straight down from above. Swiss specialist Clausen Kran had the task of installing a Condicta self erecting tower crane in a place where there was very restricted access in a narrow street between houses. It was only possible, the company said, because the installation crane, a 130 tonne capacity Liebherr LTM 1130-5.1, was fitted with the VarioBase outrigger capacity calculation system. The delivery truck, also in the picture, only had 20 or 30 mm of clearance each side, Clausen said.

PEOPLE NEWS

■ PETRE BABICEANU is the new general manager at Zoomlion Europe for development and co-ordination of the tower crane, mobile crane, forklift and aerial platform businesses.

His first post was at Terra Holding as country manager, when he was responsible for setting up the group's business in Romania. He later acted as South-East Regional director and then as Group general manager for Lifting Machinery, overseeing the development and distribution of various brands in the construction sector and starting a new lifting division.

Zoomlion said his arrival is part of a development plan for the Zoomlion Europe company, founded in 2018 as a European hub for the production and distribution of Zoomlion branded product lines.

The new plant at Solferino in northern Italy will manufacture mobile cranes, assemble tower cranes, and act as a distribution hub for forklifts and aerial work platforms. Around 80 people will be employed at the 20,000 square metre site.

With regret we report Terence "Terry" Lee Young died on 4 June 2021 at 62, after battling pancreatic cancer. He was president and CEO at Construction Safety Experts in the USA and volunteered at SC&RA, serving on the board and as a past president and chairman.
